SOUTH AFRICAN FRESH CHICKEN
"KNOW YOUR FARMER, KNOW YOUR FOOD"

ABOUT SANGIRO

WHY THE NAME SANGIRO?

The name of our abattoir, Sangiro, was adopted from a pseudonym of the famous writer, film director and game warden, Andries Albertus Pienaar.

Andries (commonly known as Sangiro) was born in the late 1800' in Broederstroom, where the abattoir currently is situated.

FACTS ABOUT SANGIRO

Sangiro is one of the largest producers of fresh chicken in South Africa. The name of our abattoir, Sangiro, was adopted from a pseudonym of the famous writer, film director and game warden, Andries Albertus Pienaar. Andries (commonly known as Sangiro) was born in the late 1800' in Broederstroom, where the abattoir currently is situated. Sangiro has been operating as a poultry abattoir since the 1970', however, it was the takeover by Mr Andrew Wilkinson in March 2012, which really drove its success, and since then has continued to provide a quality product, which is non-injected, proudly South African, predominantly fresh chicken. As our slogan, "Know your farmer, Know your food" suggests, we firmly believe our high-quality product starts at the farming level through a highly functional relationship with Sangiro' sister company, Avon Chicken Farming. Avon Chicken Farming is a company which Mr Wilkinson, previously a chicken farmer himself, began. Currently there are 32 farms supplying the Sangiro abattoir, 7 of which are owned by Mr Wilkinson himself.

BROILERS USED BY AVON

Ross 308, Arbor Acres and Cobb broilers are used due the fact that they have the best genetics available in South Africa.

They have the fastest growth rate with the lowest feed conversion.

Feed supplied to Avon by the following accredited feed producers:

- Epol
- Eagles Rock
- Nova
- Meadow
